Busy Time Foreseen On Indiana Division When Switchmen's Strike is Settled.

Freight cars held in the local Baltimore & Ohio railroad yards are being moved westward in order to be closer to St. Louis when the switchmen's strike is settled. At one time over three hundred loaded cars confined to western points were held here. Over half of that number has been moved.

Local railroad men are expecting busy times for several days after the strike is finally settled. Hundreds of cars are being held and will be moved as rapidly as possible as soon as conditions are settled.

MOTOR TRANSPORTATION.

Because of the railway strike shippers in industrial centers are giving serious attention to the possibilities of motor freight transportation. During the last week the companies which operate motor trucks for general freight business have kept their machines on the road almost constantly. The trucks have been operated by night and day in an effort to keep the freight moving. The transportation department of the Indiana Chamber of Commerce has encouraged the business. Motor trucks have served in a very beneficial way.

The more extensive use of trucks for freight delivery brings to our attention the need of solid roadways. The state highway system which is under the control of the Indiana Highway Commission has just been designated. Very little work has yet been done in way of repairs and improvement. Many of the roads are in bad condition but will be improved in a very short time. The heavier traffic on main market highways will necessitate better roads. The investment will be a guarantee that the cities and rural districts will be linked closer together than ever before and that regular shipments may be made.

BREAD Is an exceptional food

We all eat bread and like it. But, few of us ever consider the strength and body-building qualities contained in every loaf. And few of us know the tasty dishes that can be made with bread. Here is a delicate entree that will appeal to all.

OYSTERS IN A CRUST CASE

1 loaf of Star bread	2 tablespoons flour
1 quart of oysters	1 cup milk
1/2 cup melted butter substitute	Salt and pepper to taste
2 tablespoons butter	1 lemon
	Parsley

Cut top from loaf of bread, remove crumb, brush inside of case with melted butter substitute and place in slow oven to become crisp.

Prepare top in same way and fasten it to the crust.

Dry oysters and chop them. Keep ten of the oysters whole. Blend butter and flour in a saucepan over the fire, stir in milk, and keep stirring until it boils, season nicely with salt, pepper and lemon juice. Add oysters, make very hot, then turn into bread case. Heat whole oysters and lay them on the top. Garnish with parsley and serve at once. Cream cooked chickens may be used in place of oysters.

Eat more bread and make Star Bread your favorite brand.

BATTLE OF JUTLAND HERO CALLED TO CONFERENCE

Earl Beatty Summoned to Italy Presumably About German Blockade Issue.

By United Press.

London, April 19—Summoning of Earl Beatty, hero of the battle of Jutland, to the conferences of the council of premiers in San Remo, was attributed by the press here today to arrangements for the threatened renewed blockade of Germany. Beatty went to the conference at Prime Minister Lloyd George's request.

The press continued to attach the greatest importance to the conference opening today. There was almost universal insistence on vigorous enforcement of the clauses of the treaty of Versailles providing German disarmament.

BAUTE—WILLMAN. A pretty wedding took place Sunday afternoon at two o'clock at the Lutheran church, Waymansville, when Miss Clara Baute, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Baute, became the bride of Emil H. Willman, of this city. The ceremony was performed in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends by the Rev. Carl Trautman, pastor. The wedding party entered the church to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Mrs. Trautman.

The attendants were Miss Nora Baute, sister of the bride, Miss Laura Willman, sister of the groom, Albert Heideman and Charles Schneek. The bride was beautiful in a gown of white net over white charmeuse, beaded with pearls, and wore a long veil. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses.

Miss Baute wore peach colored charmeuse and Miss Willman wore gray georgette over rose. Both carried arm bouquets of sweet peas. The ushers were Everett Baute and Albert Thoel.

After the ceremony an elaborate wedding supper was served to about forty relatives and friends at the bride's home. The house was beautifully decorated with pink and white sweet peas and crepe paper streamers. The table centerpiece was a large wedding cake. Misses Lydia and Olinda Dunker and Anna Borgman assisted in serving.

HARRY McAVOY, well-known Los Angeles hotel man, who says he spent a small fortune and tried every treatment that money could buy without getting relief, until he tried Tanlac. Says he suffered for twenty years.

"In 1900 I suffered a general breakdown and during these twenty years I spent a small fortune searching for health," said Harry McAvoy, with the Alexandria Hotel of Los Angeles, one of the largest and finest hotels in southern California.

"I went to the best specialists in

New York, Chicago, New Orleans and Seattle. I tried every medicine and treatment money could buy, but the best I could do was to get a little temporary relief. Finally I gave out completely under the strain and had to quit work altogether. I was terribly discouraged over my condition and felt that I would be an invalid for the rest of my days.

"I had indigestion in its very worst form. In fact, I was a confirmed dyspeptic; nothing agreed with me and I suffered from all the terrible symptoms of indigestion. My heart palpitated so badly I thought I had heart trouble and I would get so weak and faint at times I would stagger and several times I fell flat in my tracks before I could support myself.

"I was absolutely afraid to eat, for it meant nothing but suffering afterward and I would have awful pains and burnings in the stomach and chest. Sleep! Why, I didn't know what it was to get a night's sleep! I would lie in bed a while and then get so restless I would have to get up and walk the floor. I was almost a nervous wreck and couldn't even sit still and write a letter. I lost so much weight and strength I was almost too weak to walk, and I honestly believe no man in this world suffered any more than I did.

"Last September I realized I could hold out no longer, and as I had read a great deal about Tanlac, I made up my mind to give it a trial. Well, sir, it was the greatest and happiest surprise of my life, for I began to feel better right away. My appetite improved, I began to sleep better and my strength gradually returned. So I kept right on taking the medicine and in only a few weeks' time my troubles had all left me and I found I had gained 15 pounds in weight.

"From that day to this I have positively been in the best health I ever enjoyed in all my life. I never have an ache or pain. I eat anything I want and don't suffer any bad after effects at all; in fact I feel just like a new man and have plenty of strength and energy. My nerves are steady and strong. I never have a dizzy spell and my sleep is restful and refreshing.

"Tanlac has been worth its weight in gold to me and all the money on earth could not buy the good it has done me."

Tanlac is sold in Seymour by Maxon Pharmacy, and in Crothersville by C. W. Taulman, and in Brownstown by Chas. Brock.

Agricultural Notes

Tip Top Cantaloupe.
(By G. C. Borchering)

Just a short article on cantaloupe growing at this time of the year might be of interest and especially the Tip Top cantaloupe we grow them at Seymour, Indiana.

Tip Top, a cantaloupe averaging about 5 pounds, light green rind with moderate netting, yellow flesh, very fine quality, has become the favorite among cantaloupe growers here. The markets in Northern Indiana and Ohio have got the Tip Top far in the lead as a favorite among their customers. They are not quite as good for long shipments as some other varieties unless cut 2 or 3 days before they ship. (The term slip as the grower understands it is when you find the vine cracking away from the melon, and by taking the thumb and pushing slightly the vine will slip away from the melon.)

A great deal has been written on the subject of types of soil best adapted for the cantaloupe. While the light sandy soil is the favorite, I find they will do quite as well on other types of soil, only they will not ripen quite as early and may not set as large a number of melons to the hill.

I find the cantaloupes a very fine crop to plant in young orchards. You get your trees cultivated both ways and can get 3 crops from a peach orchard and 10 crops from an apple orchard before the trees need the room. You must be able to give the ground a liberal coat of manure each year if you follow this plan. My plan is to plant the cantaloupe 4x6 feet. If possible use well rotted manure for the hill, put about 1/2 gallon to the hill, worked with the soil, bring the hill just level with the surrounding surface. It is a serious mistake to get the hill high as you cannot cultivate properly while the plants are small, and by pulling a little dirt to the plants at each hoeing you will end the cultivation period with all the hill they will need. Test your seed and if you find you have a 95 percent test, 5 seeds is sufficient, if your test is less more seeds, etc. Just as soon as the seed begins to break the ground is the time to start the hoe. You get the grass and weeds while they are just starting and you keep the hiding places for the stripped beetles destroyed. You will find the little slabs of crust the ground forms and the plants push up is just the place you will find the beetles. Start the harrow through the middles also and you have taken the first step in discouraging the beetle.

I might add here the plan we follow in preparing the seed bed is simply to break the ground "early and well." Do not drag and harrow unless cold and we don't want ground that will break cloudy on the melons. We want to do all our packing and harrowing after the melons are up. After the plants are well started use the cultivator and plow deep until the vines begin to start. At this period the cultivation should change to shallow work only. I prefer the sweeps set to run 2 inches deep. Select the width of your sweeps so they will entirely cut and mulch from hill to hill. As the vines grow reduce the width of your plow and your last cultivation should be confined to the narrow or 4 foot space between the hills and the vines trained to run the width of the 6 foot space between the hill.

In keeping the vines in this shape you can keep the plow going as long as possible, say 10 days before harvest time. You should select the narrow or 4 foot space between the row for the harvesting. You will not find it necessary to cross the vines which makes the work of harvesting easy and reduces the injury to the vines.

The above was prepared by Mr. Borchering for the "Indiana Horticulturist" and with his permission is used in this paper. He has consented to furnish several additional articles in the near future on cantaloupe growing and on alfalfa.)

Sadie Gerben Hengerveld De Kol.

Sadie Gerben Hengerveld De Kol, a pure-bred, registered Holstein-Friesian cow owned by R. M. Harrison of Appleton, Wisconsin, has added her name to the honor roll of milk and butterfat producers.

Reports show her to have given under official A. R. O. test in 7 days in one day, and averaged 106.8 pounds of milk in one day, and 744.3 pounds of milk and 32.43 pounds of butter in 7 days.

She was fed a grain mixture of bran, oats, oil meal, unicorn, cottonseed meal and distillers' grain. Besides this she was fed 3 pounds of molasses, 5 pounds of dried beef pulp (previously soaked in water), and about 30 to 40 pounds mangles. Her butter-fat test of 4.09 per cent. This roughage consisted of timothy, there being no ensilage, alfalfa or clover hay available. Salt and drinking water were within her reach at all times. She was started on 14 pounds of the grain mixture daily, fed in four parts, one-quarter of the amount at each feed, and this was gradually increased until she was receiving a daily ration of 28 pounds. This was gradually reduced to 26 pounds daily.

One of the best short course seasons in the history of agriculture extension work in Indiana has just closed. Sixteen courses of 2½ or 3½ days with a total attendance of 9,983, or an average of 624 persons, were held. Fifteen members of the Purdue University extension staff participated in the various lines of work which were arranged to suit the requests of local communities.

Courses were held at Berne, Hymera, Odon, Lowell, Valparaiso, Albion, Scottsburg, Medaryville, Young America, Urbana, Amboy, Bourbon, Letts, New Haven, Winchester and Auburn. The work at each course consisted mainly of demonstrations, hog, beef and dairy cattle, corn, poultry, feeds, fertilizers, etc., being used for illustrative purposes. For the women at each course, demonstrations were given on such subjects as home furnishings, home nursing, renovation of clothing, children's foods and clothing. At all courses, stereopticon lectures were given on popular subjects. Most of the demonstration material was ob-

Because it is made in the most careful and scientific manner from absolutely pure materials that remain pure in the baking and insure wholesome, healthful foods.

Because it possesses the greatest leavening power.

Because it is not affected by time or weather—it never loses its strength and never fails.

Because it is most economical—you save when you buy it and you save when you use it.

These are the reasons why Calumet is the standard baking powder—the choice of millions—more being sold than of any other brand.

tained in the localities where the courses were given.

At each short course point, local committees provided places for meetings, did the necessary local advertising, met the local expenses of the staff, and assembled local material needed for demonstration purposes. The expense was not great at any one place, averaging about $60 for a 2½ day course and $160 for the longer and more elaborate course.

"Interest everywhere was never known to be more satisfactory than it has been this season," said G. M. Frier, of Purdue, in charge of the short courses. "Many instances of excellent results of these courses are known now and more are showing up constantly. From the course at Auburn alone, 15 good things resulting from their short course have been enumerated. Among them are a big addition to the corn growers' association membership, a greatly enlarged five-acre contest for next season, a county Durac Association started in a big way, many crops and fertilizer demonstrations arranged for, new life put into the Spotted Poland China Breeders' Association and other agricultural lines rejuvenated."

At these courses many thousand pieces of good, practical literature on agriculture and home making were

Even Without Tire Chains

Motorists have told us that Horse-Shoe Cord Tires are so effectively non-skid that they hold the rear wheels fast on slippery pavements even when the plain-tread front tires are inclined to skid.

They say that they used these tires all last winter without tire chains, and that they turned corners at 20 miles an hour on wet pavements without skidding.

We shall be glad to show you how unusually non-skid the Horse-Shoe Cord Tire really is. Come in and ask for a demonstration.

She looked at him wonderingly. "Why—why, you're the boy with the beautiful auburn hair," she declared. He lifted his hat and revealed his thick thatch in all its glory. "I'm not so sensitive about it now," he explained. "When we first met, reference to my hair was apt to rile me." He shook her little hand with cordial good-nature. "George, suppose you pile Miss Sumner's hand-baggage in the tonneau and then pile in there yourself and keep Marcelle company. I'll drive; and you can sit up in front with me. Miss Sumner, snug behind the wind-shield where you'll not be blown about."

He went through his gears, and the car glided away on its journey. "By the way," he said suddenly as he turned west toward the distant blue mountains of Trinity county, "how did you happen to connect me with Cardigan's redwoods?"

"I've heard of Colonel Seth Pennington, speak of them."

"Colonel Seth Pennington means nothing in my young life. I never heard of him before; so I dare tell you he's a newcomer in our county. I've been away six years," he added in explanation.

"We're from Michigan. Uncle was formerly in the lumber business there, but he's logged out now."

"I see. So he came west, I suppose, and bought a lot of redwood lumber cheap from some old croaker who never could see any future to the redwood lumber industry. Personally, I don't think he could have made a better investment. I hope I shall have the pleasure of making his acquaintance when I deliver you to him. Perhaps you may be a neighbor of mine. Hope so."

At this juncture George Sea Otter, who had been an interested listener to the conversation, essayed a grunt from the rear seat. Instantly, to Shirley Sumner's vast surprise, her host grunted also; whereupon George Sea Otter broke into a series of grunts and guttural exclamations which evidently appeared quite intelligible to her host, for he slowed down to five miles an hour and cocked one ear to the rear; apparently he was profoundly interested in whatever information his henchman had to impart. When George Sea Otter finished his harangue, Bryce nodded and once more gave his attention to tossing the miles behind him.

"What language was that?" Shirley Sumner inquired, consumed with curiosity.

"Digger Indian," he replied. "George's mother was my nurse, and he and I grew up together. So I can't very well help speaking the language of the tribe."

They chattered volubly on many subjects for the first twenty miles; then the road narrowed and commenced to climb steadily, and thereafter Bryce gave all of his attention to the car, for a deviation of a foot from the wheel-rut on the outside of the road would have sent them hurtling over the grade into the deep-timbered canyons below. By reason of the fact that Bryce's gaze never wavered from the road immediately in front of the car, she had a chance to appraise him critically while pretending to look past him to the tumbled, snow-covered ranges to their right.

She saw a big, supple, powerful man of twenty-five or six, with the bearing and general demeanor of one many years his elder. His nose was high, of medium thickness and just a trifle long—the nose of a thinker. His ears were large, with full lobes—the ears of a generous man. The mouth, full-lipped but firm, the heavy jaw and square chin, the great hands (most amazingly free from freckles) denoted the man who would not avoid a fight worth while.

Upon their arrival at the rest-house, Bryce during dinner was very attentive and mildly amusing, although Shirley's keen wits assured her that this was merely a clever pose and sustained with difficulty. She was confirmed in this assumption when, after dinner, she complained of being weary and bade him good-night. She had scarcely left him when he called: "George!"

The half-breed slid out of the darkness and sat down beside him. A moment later, through the open window of her room just above the porch where Bryce and George Sea Otter sat, Shirley heard the former say:

"George, when did you first notice that my father's sight was beginning to fail?"

"About two years ago, Bryce. He began to walk with his hands held out in front of him, and sometimes he lifted his feet too high."

"Can he see at all now, George?"

"Oh, yes, a little bit—enough to make his way to the office and back."

"Poor old governor! George, until you told me this afternoon, I hadn't heard a word about it. If I had, I never would have taken that two-year jaunt around the world. And you say this man Colonel Pennington and my father have been having trouble."

"Yes—" Here George Sea Otter gracefully unb burdened himself of a fervent curse directed at Shirley's avuncular relative; whereupon that young lady promptly left the window and heard no more.

They were on the road again by eight o'clock next morning, and just as Cardigan's mill was blowing the six o'clock whistle, Bryce stopped the car at the head of the street leading down to the water-front. "I'll let you drive now, George," he informed the silent Sea Otter. He turned to Shirley Sumner. "I'm going to leave you now," he said. "Thank you for riding over from Red Bluff with me. My father never leaves the office until the whistle blows, and so I'm going to hurry down to that little building you see at the end of the street and surprise him."

He stepped out on the running board, stood there a moment, and extended his hand. Shirley had commenced a due and formal expression of her gratitude for having been delivered safely in Sequoia, when George Sea Otter spoke:

"Here comes John Cardigan," he said.

"Drive Miss Sumner around to Colonel Pennington's house," Bryce ordered, and even while he held Shirley's hand, he turned to catch the first glimpse of his father. Shirley followed his glance and saw a tall, powerfully built old man coming down the street with his hands thrust a little in front of him, as if for protection from some invisible assailant.

And he commenced to weep for the third time in fifty years. And when the aged and helpless weep, nothing is more terrible. Bryce Cardigan said no word, but held his father close to his great heart and laid his cheek gently against the old man's tenderly as a woman might. And presently from that silent communion of spirit each drew strength and comfort. As the shadows fell in John Cardigan's town, they went home to the house on the hill.

REBUILT

By the Golden Rule not by the rule of Gold

THIRTY denominations of the Church are uniting in a simultaneous campaign in the week of April 25th-May 2nd.

They are uniting because the task before the Church is too great for any one denomination; because there must be no duplication of effort; no waste.

These churches know that the world needs many things; but it needs Faith most of all.

They know that there can be no final solution of our economic problems that is not a spiritual solution, based on the teachings of Jesus Christ and His Golden Rule.

They have had the courage to survey the whole task, and to ask for a budget large enough to sustain (1) the work abroad, (2) the work at home including the church's part in the huge task of Americanization, (3) the colleges and (4) hospitals supported by the Churches, (5) the religious training of the young, and to provide (6) a living wage for the Church's ministers.

The budget is large in the aggregate; yet if each person who loves America would increase his contribution by only a few dollars the whole amount would be easily subscribed.

We face the task of rebuilding the world. Let the cornerstone be a strong and vital church in every American community; and the measuring rod by which the builders build must be the Golden Rule.

VETERAN EXPIRES
AT SOLDIERS' HOME

sheriff of Scott county. His election signified his popularity in that community as he had the distinction of being the first Republican to hold a county office in Scott county. After being chosen by the people as sheriff he moved to Lexington, then the county seat, and remained there for two years until his term of office expired.

In 1862 Mr. Weaver was appointed and commissioned as Second Lieutenant by Governor Morton as a recruiting officer and established his headquarters in Scott county. After serving a few months in this capacity he surrendered his commission and enlisted as a private soldier in Company K, Sixty-sixth Indiana Regiment of Volunteer Infantry.

He became clerk to the division ordnance officer and as such issued the ammunition to sixteen regiments in the division. Mr. Weaver was detained on a number of important commissions, one of which was the transfer of a train of ten cars, loaded with arms, artillery harness and other equipment, from Rome, Ga., to Nashville, Tenn. Mr. Weaver was with Sherman's army when it fought its way to Atlanta, but there the ordnance department was consolidated with the Post at Rome and he was transferred to that place.

During the Atlanta campaign he was placed in practically complete control of the ordnance department and to the sixteen regiments of the division issued 1,600,000 rounds of ammunition. In this capacity he proved himself to be accurate and painstaking and was rewarded with the high commendation of his superiors.

After Mr. Weaver had taken the train to Nashville he remained there for a time until he was ordered to Washington City where the famous review of the victorious army took place. At Washington he reenlisted in the 59th Ind. Regiment but served but a short time for the regiment was sent to Louisville and was there mustered out of service.

Mr. Weaver engaged in but one battle, at Resaca, Ga., where Col. Benjamin Harrison manifested his courage and bravery by being one of the first soldiers to mount the breast works. Mr. Weaver escaped injury in the conflict although a bullet tore a hole in his hat. His comrade who was standing next to him was shot down.

After the close of the war Mr. Weaver returned to his native country and for three years traveled for a patent right. At the close of that period he resumed his trade at Lexington and lived there until 1872. In that year he came to Seymour and lived here continuously until last fall. Mrs. Weaver died on Thanksgiving Day 1888.

For sixteen years Mr. Weaver was a pension attorney and for forty years held a notary public commission. In 1890 he was appointed G. A. R. department inspector and his report of the four hundred posts in Indiana was comprehensive. He was twice commander of Ellsworth Post. He was the father of six children, fifteen grand children and four great grand children.
